

The all metal Larsen monoplane L-6, in which Stinson and Bertaud made a new world record at Hazelhurst Field, Long Island. They remained in the air 26 hours, 19 minutes and 35 seconds.

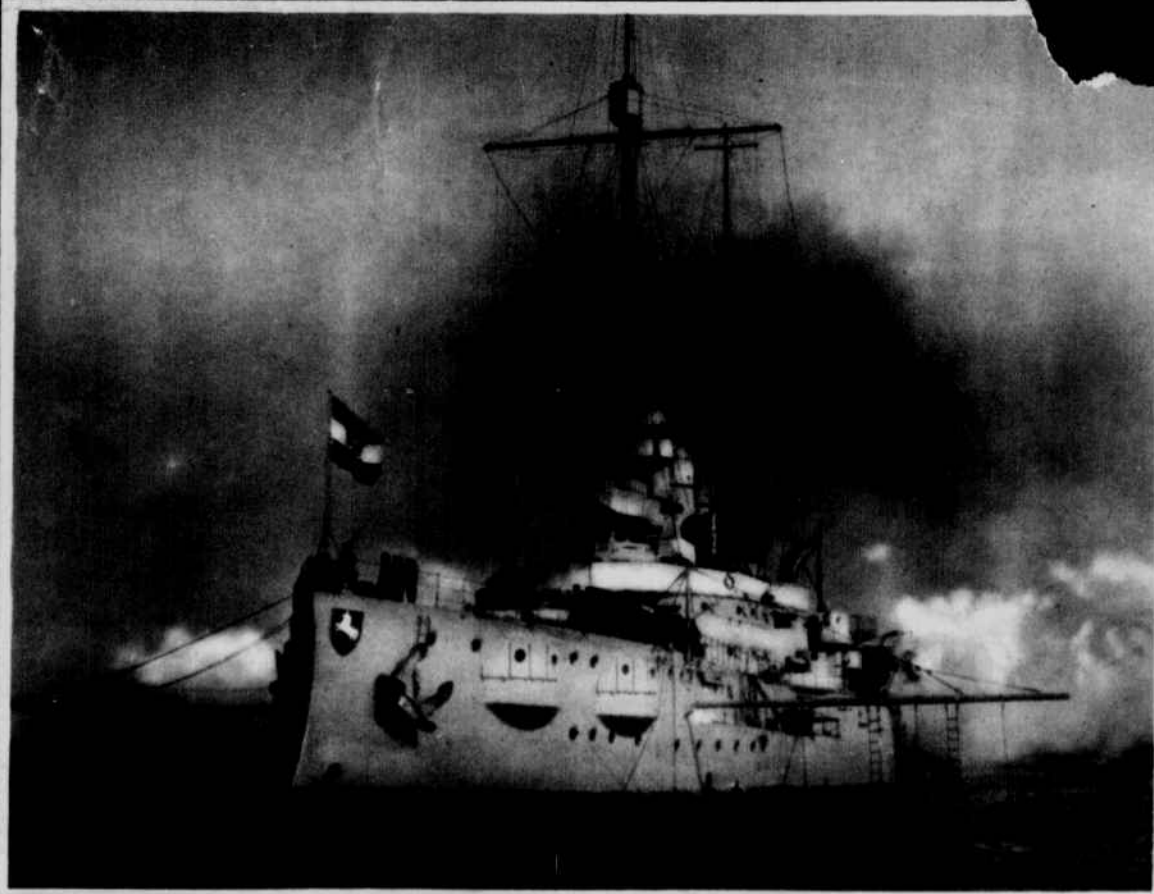

Edward Stinson (right) and Lloyd Bertaud, the two American aviators who made a new world's endurance flight record, photographed immediately after their return to the ground. They were stiff with cold and three of Stinson's fingers were frostbitten. The men were warmly congratulated.

Turning over the last of the German floating drydocks to the Allies. The photograph shows it being towed through the Kiel Canal.

Kadel & Herbert.

Of Germany's proud war navy the only battleship left to her by the terms of the treaty is the Hannover, shown here at anchor at Kiel.

Kadel & Herbert.

Mme. Selfridge of London with her great-granddaughter, Tatiana de Bolotoff.

(c) Speaight-International.

New Year's Day receptions at the White House were resumed after an interval of years and thousands called on the President and Mrs. Harding. The photograph shows army officers arriving.

(c) Harris & Ewing.